 Priority Mail Service generally takes 2-3 days for delivery but it is not guaranteed and can take as many as 5 days especially if you live far from Indiana, live in a very rural area, or the week of shipment is a holiday week. If you choose to pay for eggs shipped using Priority Mail Service (instead of Express Mail Service) then I do not guarantee what day they will arrive and will not send replacement eggs due to the eggs getting delayed past the general shipment time of 2-3 days. The USPS does not guarantee delivery dates for Priority Mail Service and neither can I.

Express Mail Service is guaranteed for either 1 or 2 day delivery and has a money back guarantee from the USPS. If Express shipments are delayed past the guaranteed date I will obtain a refund for the shipping cost from the USPS. I can either issue you a refund for the Express shipping or use it to ship another order of eggs at no additional charge for the eggs. Eggs shipped using Express Mail Service are priced higher than eggs shipped using Priority Mail Service because Express service costs more. The additional cost for Express is based on your postal zone and is calculated based on the weight of box and distance from my zip code to your zip code.
